European Society for Philosophy of Medicine and Healthcare

ESPMH Young Scholar Awards 2027

The European Society for Philosophy of Medicine and Healthcare (ESPMH) is now accepting submissions for two awards for MA, PhD students, early career researchers who are within eight years of the completion of their PhD degree in 2027. These awards will be granted for scientific contributions addressing ethical, epistemological, or other philosophical issues related to medicine and healthcare. In case of multi-authored work, the first author or first co-authors are receiving the prize, and the input of authors must be described in line with the Contributor Role Taxonomy (CRediT) standards. For AI use in manuscript preparation and research, please consult Springer Nature policies.

Submissions must be original, unpublished works, with a maximum word count of 12,000 words (excluding bibliography and footnotes). They must be written in English and submitted by March 1, 2027. The jury, composed of ESPMH board members and possibly additional external reviewers, will assess the submissions.

The first-place award includes €2,000, and the second-place award €1,500, both intended to support travel and accommodation costs for attending the 39th ESPMH Conference, to be held in Prague, Czech Republic, August 2027. Award winners will be invited to present their work at this conference.
